PATHRIKAR NURSING SCHOOL
WORLD HEALTH DAY 2025
REPORT

To commemorate World Health Day 2025, the Department of Community Health Nursing, Pathrikar nursing school, Pathri organized a vibrant program on 7th April 2025, in alignment with the WHO theme "Healthy Beginning, Hopeful Future," with a special focus on global action for maternal and child health as a foundation for a sustainable and healthy future.

The program commenced with a welcome address by Miss. Thaku Bhanuse, Principal, PNS. She expressed her appreciation for the students' involvement and emphasized the responsibility of healthcare professionals in promoting maternal and child well-being. Miss. Thaku Bhanuse, Head of the Department of Community Health Nursing, unfolded the theme of the day, explaining its global relevance and the role of community health nurses in shaping a healthier beginning for every child and mother. The keynote speaker and resource person, Mrs. Geetarani Nayak, delivered an enlightening session on the theme "Healthy Beginning, Hopeful Future – Global Action for Maternal and Child Health." Her talk focused on evidence-based strategies, global policies, and practical nursing interventions that can bring transformative change in maternal and child health outcomes.

As part of the celebration, several student-centered competitions were held to enhance engagement and learning:

1. Quiz Competition: From 23 students in the screening round, five groups (each with one student) advanced to the final round. The winners were awarded note book and book along with certificates. The quiz tested their grasp on World Health Day themes, maternal-child health, and public health initiatives.
2. Rangoli competition: Miss. Shivani Sapkal, Sakshi Jadhav, Aishwarya Giri, Ashwini Jadhav, Pooja Mhaske they all participated in the rangoli competition and made a beautiful rangoli. Principal mam gave 1st prize to that all girls for making beautiful rangoli.
3. The celebration concluded with a Vote of Thanks delivered by Miss. Kalyani Khandekar, Associate Professor, Department of Community Health Nursing. She expressed gratitude to the Guest Speaker, faculty members, organizing team, and all the enthusiastic student participants who contributed to the program's success. The event proved to be an inspiring platform for promoting awareness, advocacy, and action toward achieving a healthier beginning and a hopeful future for all mothers and children.
